

U. S. MUST PREVENT WORLD STARVATION

Dean Mumford Tells Situation at Meeting of County Food Heads.

GERMANY IS CAUSE Empire Stole Food Supplies and Left Nations Destitute.

The people of America have conserved to win the war; they must now conserve to save the world from starvation, for hunger is the mother of anarchy, F. B. Mumford, federal food administrator for Missouri, declared in a speech to the county food administrators and women food chairmen, at the conference in Jefferson City today.

A world conscience in place of a war conscience must be developed among the people of America, he said, and the food conservation slogan from now on must be world relief.

"The work of the Food Administration is not yet ended; our victory is not yet completely won," he said, "for we must help feed the liberated nations of Europe, victims of Germany and the war, as well as the Allies."

Central Powers All Hungry.

"It should be a matter of the utmost satisfaction to all who have had a part in the administration of the food problems of America, that they have been able not only to protect our own people from suffering, but that we have provided sufficient supplies of food for all our Allies. This is in marked contrast to the food conditions of the Central Powers, and their allies. In all the countries directly allied with the Central Powers food conditions have been extremely serious from the beginning. If the food policies of the German Empire had brought misery and suffering only for their own people, who are responsible for this war, we would not be materially concerned, but the German Empire has not only reduced its own people to starvation but millions of the inhabitants of innocent nations bordering the German Empire have died of starvation; they have been destroyed because Germany has stolen their food supplies and left them destitute."

"These nations are now starving and literally millions must perish from starvation before another harvest unless we are able to go to their rescue."

Russians in Peril.

"Some of these populations it will be difficult to reach. There are perhaps forty million people in northern Russia so situated that food cannot be transported to them by rail and the seaports will soon be blocked with ice, so that the feeding of these people presents a problem which is very difficult of solution."

"It is our duty from the standpoint of humanitarianism alone to continue our efforts to supply the sufferings of the world until such time as nations can be re-established and the normal industries of the world again put in motion."

"The conservation measures of the Food Administration have made possible the successful feeding of our Army and the civilian populations of the Allied and neutrals. America is now presented with the still greater opportunity to demonstrate her unselfish devotion to the cause of freedom and human happiness. We must now direct our vast resources to the feeding of the world. Our response to this plea must be instant. The food is needed now. We must export great quantities of food supplies before the next harvest if we are to prevent the starvation of the peoples with the consequent anarchy which will follow. Starvation is the mother of anarchy. We have conserved to win the war; we must now conserve to save the world."

Sacrifices Must Continue.

"We must now attempt to develop among our people a world conscience in the place of a war conscience. Our conservation slogan now must be world relief. Our victory is not complete until we have demonstrated to the world that we entered this war for the purpose of winning a moral victory. The moral victory is not yet won. Our sacrifices must continue."

"It is estimated," he said, "that America must supply 60 per cent of the world's demand for foodstuffs. The United States and the West Indies must export 20,000,000 tons of foodstuffs during this coming year as compared with the pre-war export of six million."

"The work of the Food Administration must continue until peace is proclaimed. There can be no let up in our efforts to supply the needs of a starving world and there must be no leniency toward the food gambler who seeks to benefit from the hunger of destitute women and children. We must be even more vigilant by reason of the fact that we now face a very natural tendency among dealers in food commodities and consumers to relax now that the war is won."

MAY SEAL QUESTIONNAIRES Instructions as to Disposal of Draft Papers Expected Soon.

Instructions telling the local draft board what to do with the questionnaires of Boone County registrants in the selective draft are expected within the next few days, according to Harry S. Jacks, secretary of the board.

No definition information has as yet been received, but it is thought that the questionnaires will be sealed in separate envelopes and stored away.

Whether they will be stored here or will be sent to a central point where the questionnaires from the entire state will be stored is a question. If the latter method is adopted the documents for this state will probably be stored at Jefferson City.

They will not be public records, but it is thought that they may be referred to in case of necessity during legal proceedings. During the war the questionnaires were opened only by permission of military authorities. The exact rulings that will govern the future are a matter of discussion here.

Boone County had 6,325 men register for the draft during the four registrations. Three thousand, four hundred and fourteen of these registered September 12 of this year. All but about 100 of the questionnaires sent out have been filed out and returned to the draft board. They are filed alphabetically in separate folders and kept in filing cases. When the order is received to prepare them for their permanent storage, it will only be necessary to seal each one as it is packed away.

DOUBLE NAVY BY 1920

New Destroyers Are Numerous—350 Wooden Chasers to Be Sold.

By United Press. WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—The American Navy by July, 1920, will have more than twice the number of ships which it had before the war, Admiral Taylor, chief of navy construction, told the House naval affairs committee today.

This is exclusive of about 350 wooden submarine chasers, which the Navy expects to sell to other governments or to put out of commission.

Destroyers represent the backbone of the increase, Taylor said. There are now 100 of these in commission and 240 will be added in the next eighteen months, making this country's destroyer force nearly equal to that of Great Britain.

One new dreadnought will be completed in about a month. Two more are rapidly approaching completion and an additional two will be done before the summer of 1920.

There will be a number of new scout cruisers completed by the latter part of 1920.

Twenty-nine more submarines will be completed before the middle of 1920, giving this country thirty-five to forty more than in 1916, Admiral Taylor said.

Fifty mine sweepers, which are likely to be converted into gun boats, one hundred eagle boats and twenty-five tugs make up an increase, the revelation of which astonished even the members of the naval committee, who have kept in close touch with the naval situation all during the war.

The strength of the Navy in 1916, the admiral said, was about three hundred ships. By July 1920 the number would be 700 vessels or more.

Admiral Taylor said that the Navy had so many aircraft that it had been forced to store some of them. These conditions have prevailed for the last six months. The naval air program has more than come up to its requirements.

OFFICERS INTERRUPT LUNCHEON Saluting Interiors With Eating In the Open.

"Informal luncheons," that is what the collegiate section S. A. T. C. members call eating outside of refreshment places.

Between classes and formations groups of student soldiers gather before these places juggling in their hands waffles, cups of coffee and all the other products of the caterers.

There is always some one in these groups who sees an approaching officer and shouts "attention!" A crashing of falling dishes and a splashing of spilling liquids indicate an attempt to salute the officer. Men seated on the curbing scatter their food-stuffs into the gutter in a hasty attempt to come to attention.

When all of this is done, the officer surveys the group, smiles good-naturedly, and commands "rest."

The waitress comes out and takes the orders over again, and the soldiers mutter, "Ain't army life great?"

GAME WITH KANSAS HAS BEEN CANCELLED

Conditions Due to Influenza Will Prevent Tigers From Leaving.

STUDENTS TO REMAIN

No Excuses Will Be Given for Members of Student Body to Go Home.

At a meeting of the Committee of Deans of the University held on the afternoon of Thursday, November 21, it was decided that no student should be excused to leave Columbia during the Thanksgiving vacation. This action was taken upon the urgent recommendation of the University Health Committee, and its sole purpose is to protect the health of the student body. It is therefore hoped and expected that both students and their parents will cordially co-operate with the deans of the various divisions of the University in carrying out the provisions of the above action. It was further decided that students who leave the University without excuse should not be permitted to return during this term.

The football game scheduled for Thanksgiving Day between Missouri and Kansas has necessarily been cancelled.

J. C. JONES, Vice-President.

For the first time in twenty-eight years the University of Missouri and the University of Kansas will not meet in the annual Thanksgiving game. The foregoing notice from Dr. J. C. Jones, vice-president of the University, giving the action yesterday of the Committee of Deans in regard to granting excuses to students for absence from Columbia on Thanksgiving makes it impossible for the Tigers to go to Lawrence for the annual contest.

The Tigers have gone through the entire football season without playing a single contest. As far as is known here it is the only team in the conference that has not been able to play at least one or two games. Beginning with October 2, when the Missouri team was scheduled to play Drury College at Columbia, every game on the entire schedule has had to be abandoned, either because of the War Department's regulations or because of the health situation due to influenza.

The games cancelled included those with Kansas Aggies at Manhattan, October 12; Iowa State College at Ames, October 19; Drake University at Columbia, October 26; Oklahoma University at Norman, November 2; Nebraska at Columbia, November 9; Washington University at Columbia, November 16; and Kansas at Lawrence, November 28. No game had been scheduled for next Saturday.

Varsity football practice on Rollins Field will be abandoned this week.
